Pray that students of all ages may find God in everything they learn.

We spend a long time in school. We start in preschool or kindergarten, and we spend many years learning reading, history, math, and more.

The Pope asks us to pray this month for students of all ages. All over the world, students from kindergarten through college learn so much that sometimes they forget that everything they're learning comes from God.

Science and God can't be separated. Scientists study what God made. Every atom and every cell in the universe was perfectly created by God. The more we learn about math, science, and even languages and music, the more we see how perfect God is.

The Jesuits, the group of priests who started the Apostleship of Prayer, call it "Finding God in All Things." God is in everything, if you know where to look! You can find him in the notes of a musical scale, in multiplication and division, in plants, in animals, and especially in other people.

Let's pray with the Pope that all students remember to look for God in everything they learn.

Think about it!

- What is your favorite thing to learn about?
- Where can you find God in your favorite school subject?
- Where can you find God in your least favorite school subject?
